BIO:

If you took Jeff Buckley, Tears for Fears, Pink Floyd, and Coldplay, put them in a sack and shook really hard, out would come the fourth album from ULTRATONE. It's a concept album set in the future, that tells a story about a world with no pain. This new album is their most ambitious album yet, taking you on a ride with songs that weave together a tale of a futuristic world, where space exploration has led to a what would be a society changing discovery.

Musically, this is a story as well, with exciting ups and poignant downs, and with a sweeping rich production that keeps the listener engaged throughout the story.

In the 90's, Joe Scheirich and high school orchestra buddies, Luca Bianconcini and John Hulcher, formed the prog rock band, JOE'S REPORT. Locally and regionally gaining popularity, they released a couple of EPs and one full-length CD.

In 2001, Joe went on to form ULTRATONE with a more modern, melodic sound. Having gone through several lineups over the last decade, today Ultratone includes Luca and John, with Jeff Cohen and Carl Stuck, all the while with Joe at the helm and recording in Joe's Studio at his home in Louisville, KY. This is a group of musicians who can pull from different styles while maintaining an unmistakable sound of their own.

ULTRATONE is: atmospheric layers of sound, a powerful yet tasteful rhythm section, a vocal style with a lot of dimension, and intelligent, hook-laden songwriting. Live, ULTRATONE shines with tight, emotional performances. You don't want to miss this band.

Review Excerpts

Tim Roberts - Louisville Music News

And like a long drive on a warm evening, the car windows open and the sounds of the road melding with the whoosh of air, Ultratone's Pass It Along fills your ears with the sounds of living: the bitter, the sweet and everything in between.

Chris Quay - Velocity Weekly

On the surface, it's just reassuring to know that a talented guy like Scheirich is out there making music that aspires to more than simply filling a popular niche.

Smother.net

Hailing from Louisville, Kentucky, Ultratone makes their own slugger out of infectious pop hooks that you'll be humming bars of weeks after your initial listen. Ultratone is a refreshing change in pace from the plethora of mainstream artists today.

"I've been a big fan of Joe Scheirich's music since his earlier band Joe's Report. His songs are consistently brilliant, mature, and thoughtful. Ultratone deserves superstardom."
